

Public Speaking Tips for Students

As you decide to inform your class about your decision, you must be ready to deliver a speech with conviction. Here are 5 tips:

What's your role?

Talk to your team and decide who wants to speak to the class and who is going to answer questions when they arise!

Give everyone a voice.

Regardless of your decision, make sure you mention all of the stakeholders who will be affected by your decision.

Give good reasons.

People are going to want to know why you have made your decision. Make sure that your reasons are well thought out and researched.

Consider the future.

As you prepare your speech, make sure that you discuss the long term effects of the decision you make and the way others will benefit in the long term

Get ready for questions

People are going to have questions. Try to predict these before you start talking and prepare solid answers.

Now deliver your talk with conviction and confidence.
