

Dear Head of the Red Cross,

Hello, my name is Gavin McCormack, and I am a Grade 8 student at our local school. I am writing to you because I have a vision for a future where peace, justice, and strong institutions are the norm, and I believe the Red Cross can play a big role in making this vision come true.

The work of the Red Cross is super important for helping people in need, especially during tough times. Your efforts have already made a huge difference around the world, and I am really inspired by what you do. However, I think we can do even more to create a better future.

As a leader in helping others, you have the power to make big changes. Here is my vision for the future and how the Red Cross can help make it happen:

1. Equal Treatment: A world where everyone, no matter if they are men or women, is treated equally and with respect.
2. Welcome Refugees: A world where refugees are welcomed into countries because they need help and they are humans just like you and me.
3. Peaceful Communities: A world where communities live peacefully, and people know how to solve conflicts without fighting.
4. Fair Justice: A world where everyone has access to fair justice, and no one is denied legal help because of who they are.
5. Honest Leaders: A world where our leaders and institutions are honest and truly work for the people, reducing corruption and promoting fairness.
6. Empowered Youth: A world where young people are empowered to be leaders in promoting peace and justice, and they have the tools to make a difference.
7. Human Rights for All: A world where everyone knows their human rights and how to protect them, and where these rights are respected everywhere.

I believe that with your leadership, we can inspire young people like me to take action. Your commitment to these goals can motivate us to help build a more just and peaceful society.

Could you please share how students like me can help support the Red Cross's mission for peace, justice, and strong institutions? What can we do in our daily lives to help? How can we get our communities involved in this important work?

Thank you very much for reading my letter. I hope to hear back from you and use your advice to make a positive impact in my community.

Your dedication could inspire not just me, but many other young people, to take action and help build a better future for everyone.

Yours sincerely,
Gavin McCormack

Ten Tips to Write a Letter with a Vision for the Future

- Introduce Yourself Clearly: Begin your letter by introducing yourself. Mention your name, grade, and school to provide context and establish who you are.
- State Your Purpose: Clearly explain the reason for writing the letter. Express your concern about peace, justice, or strong institutions and your hope that the leader can make a positive change.
- Understand Your Audience: Research the person you are writing to. Mention their role and how they can help with the issue you care about.
- Describe Your Vision: Paint a vivid picture of the future you envision. Use positive and inspiring language to describe a world with peace, justice, and strong institutions.
- Provide Relevant Information: Include important facts and details related to your topic. Explain how it affects people and why it's crucial to address it.
- Showcase the Importance: Explain why the issue is important to you personally. Use compelling reasons and examples to highlight its significance.
- Make Clear Requests: Specify what actions you want the leader to take. Be clear and direct about your requests, outlining specific steps they can follow.
- Use Emotional Appeal: Connect with the reader's emotions by sharing personal stories or anecdotes that illustrate the impact of the issue.
- Be Respectful and Polite: Maintain a respectful and polite tone throughout the letter. Address the recipient properly and use courteous language.
- End with a Strong Conclusion: Summarize your main points and express your hope for a positive response. Thank the recipient for their time and consideration, and mention how their actions can make a difference.
